Joe Had a "Chicken" Called "White Sox"

Joe Lubrano, the pigeon thief, and about every other variety of burglar, was sent up for five years. Joe is only a kid, but had a woman called "White Sox" who held out at 22d and San Pablo. She was the "fence" for much of the loot Joe secured along the avenue. Joe operated extensively in the county line district, and many small burglaries were traced to his door. He even stole the extra tire from a city official's machine one night in front of a roadhouse on the avenue, and got away with it. Now he is in the toils. Joe is a good-looking, intelligent boy and could have made his mark. But environments and that uncontrollable desire to steal, was too strong.

City Fire Department "Right on the Job"

Richmond's paid fire department gave a demonstration Tuesday when Mayor Ludwig turned in an alarm from 9th and Bissell. In one-half minute after the alarm was turned in, the big truck in fire hall No. 2 responded, and one minute and four seconds the men were laying the hose from the hydrant at the corner of 9th and Bissell.

Arthur Guivonetti to Speak Monday Night

Arthur Guivonetti, the great labor leader who figured in the textile strike at Lawrence, Mass., whose name is so familiar, has been secured to speak here by the local potters and the Central Labor Council. He will speak Monday night at the Tenth street school auditorium, his first address will be in his native language to the Italian people. At 8:30 he will speak in English.

Home From Europe.

Louie Miller, one of the proprietors of the One Minute chop house, 7th and Macdonald, is now very happy. His wife and two children have returned from Germany, where they have been visiting relatives the past year.

Builders Exchange.

The one main object of the Richmond Builders' Exchange is to keep Richmond money in Richmond. The exchange rooms will be open from 8 to 6, and those contemplating improvements should investigate the inducements.

Street Car Tracks Hold Up Highway

The state highway is held up on account of the street car tracks not centering the right of way on San Pablo avenue between Potrero and Macdonald. The twelve miles of roadway between the county line and Pinole could be improved if it were not for this obstruction. Contra Costans are especially anxious that this improvement be made. This road is traveled extensively by Martinez and Richmond residents. It is thought that the matter will be adjusted with the traction company in a few days.

Bank Bar Sold.

The Bank Bar has been sold to Michael Lucey, W. F. Logan retiring. Mr. Logan will probably go to Nevada and engage in business. Roy Patterson will be retained by Mr. Lucey.

Will Be Out Soon.

Constable J. H. Gregory is improving, although the last relapse has made him quite weak. He will take extra precaution while convalescing this time.

"FILTERED KNOCKS."

(On the Water Question)
Join the Hetch Hetchy club.

We all know that Hetch Hetchy is pure. That's certain.

Ed Hasey says: "I am out of politics, but will support the water bonds." Ed, what have you been smoking?

The good government and Hetch Hetchy clubs are "gingering up" in Richmond. How about the cactus? Was it a prickly one?

The congressional records contain all the arguments in favor of Hetch Hetchy water supply with points from every angle. Secretary Lane knows.

If Sacramento slough water is so popular with the people, why don't some of the candidates in the coming municipal election incorporate it in their platforms? Would it be "Good night?"

The Terminal is the only newspaper in Richmond with the moral courage to express the sentiment of the people and taxpayers who foot the bills. Nothing "on The Terminal."

If the water bond election fails to carry for $2,500,000, will the terms of office of the water commission expire, or will another levy for taxes for 12½ cents on $20,000,000 be made on the tax roll of 1914-1915? The attorney-general will decide.

Has there been provision made for the right of way for the new Sacramento river water system in case the bonds carry? Has the water commission secured an option on the old distributing system which now supplies the city? Anything doing in this matter?

The factory fake talk about the scarcity of water is for a purpose. Everyone knows that the factories can secure water from their own wells, an abundance for all requirements. They do not need engineers nor inspectors, nor rights of way, nor filtering plants.

In eastern cities, water is used from rivers and the purses of water managers are fattened by the consumption, because they have no other water to use. It is different in California where floods of snow waters go to waste awaiting consumption by the human race.

The Richmond Terminal newspaper has always been and always will be a people's newspaper, and believes in a municipal water system when such can be secured at least burden to the taxpayers and which makes the burden easier for those who pay rent and installments.

Rubicon Otis says: "We demand a business administration." The Times is on the toboggan.

Wins Suit Against S. P.

Mrs. Eva M. Coffey of Merced has been awarded $16,625, by a jury in a suit against the Southern Pacific. Mrs. Coffey's husband, a farmer, was killed in Merced last July by a train which was exceeding the speed limit, and the view of the approaching train was obstructed by a string of freight cars on a siding. It is said to be the most drastic liquor ordinance ever passed in northern California.

San Jose's Election.

San Jose's municipal election Monday the 18th resulted in the election of Dr. Fred R. Husted, mayor; Dr. A. C. Jeyet, Ben Sellers and J. J. McLaurin, councilmen; Roy E. Walter, city clerk; Louis Lightston, treasurer; T. R. Dougherty, police judge. Of the seven charter amendments voted upon, four carried.

Must Keep Sober.

Hereafter the sale of liquor in parks and public playgrounds will be prohibited in the city of Richmond. Dancing is prohibited in public halls on Sunday, but permitted in parks and public playgrounds. The new city ordinance regulating amusement places had its first reading Monday night.

Hon. Charles M. Belshaw of Antioch, former state senator from Contra Costa and Marin counties, past grand president of the Native Sons and one of the best known men in the public life of the state, has announced his candidacy for governor. PAT CALHOUN CHARGED WITH "PLUNDERING" U. R. R. FUNDS

San Francisco.—In the five months preceding his retirement from the United Railroads Patrick Calhoun took $1,096,000 from the funds of the corporation. He invested this money, according to his own statement, in stock of the Solano Irrigated Farms Company, which is now in the hands of a creditors' committee.

In an official report, the State Railroad Commission declared this transaction to be a fraud, and that Calhoun had plundered the United Railroads at a time when every dollar of its assets was sorely needed.

Jesse W. Lillenthal, who succeeded Calhoun as president of the United Railroads, made the following statement:

"When I took office I found that this money was gone. I secured from Mr. Calhoun a note for it, secured by his Solano land stock. In the company's balance sheets I entered this note of Calhoun's as an asset and attached to it the value of $1. That is all it seemed to me to be worth. What Calhoun did with the money I do not exactly know. The presumption is he invested it in the Solano project."

The Railroad Commission takes the position that there is no evidence that the $1,096,000 Calhoun was allowed by the directors and stockholders to divert from the United Railroads all went into the Solano Irrigated Farms Company, and that considerable mystery still surrounds the transaction in high finance.

Members of the commission pointed out that they would be able to clear away all this mystery if their auditing department had access to the books of the United Railroads prior to 1913. Access to these books was sought by the commission when the United Railroads sought permission to issue and sell $2,350,000 of 6 per cent five-year notes on February 4, 1913.

When the books were asked for the Railroad Commission was told that the books had been sent for audit to the East and would be placed at the disposal of the commissioners as soon as they were returned to San Francisco.

The books apparently were never returned, however, and the Railroad Commission was unable to scrutinize them in considering the application of the corporation for the note issue. The application was evidently denied by the commission with the explanation that it refused the sought for sanction because people who might invest in the securities of a corporation that would inevitably have to be reorganized or go into the hands of a receiver would inevitably be losers.

The meat of the financial situation of the corporation prior to the time it was reorganized with Jesse W. Lillenthal as successor to Calhoun as president is contained in the missing books. Many extraordinary expenses were contracted by the United Railroads prior to this time, and the books that were sent east for audit presumably contain details that would shed considerable light on these transactions.

"I have been asked," said Jesse Lillenthal, successor to Patrick Calhoun as president of the United Railroads, "whether anything has been done by me, or anyone connected with this company, to secure immunity for anyone if a wrong has been done in connection with the financial transactions revealed by the State Railroad Commission."

"My answer is that if any crime was committed nothing has been done by anyone that would obstruct prosecution for that crime. I have had that thought in mind ever since I became president of this company and discovered that the money was gone."

"It has occurred to me repeatedly: 'Assuming that some crime was committed, will I be thought to have done something to obstruct justice?'"

"I have not characterized this transaction, and I have called nobody names; but if there was any crime committed, the door is wide open for prosecution."

'GUN WOMEN' FIGHT WITH POLICEMEN

Slash Priceless Paintings, Call King "Czar" and Throw Shoes at Magistrate

London.—An attempt by militant suffragettes to present a petition to King George at Buckingham Palace resulted in the fiercest battle in the history of the militant movement at the very gates to the palace. The shock of combat was short but sharp and resulted in the arrest of many women, who, in attempting to defend themselves, used clubs with a facility which betrayed long training. The thousands of onlookers suffered almost as much as the fighters, as the people waited in a blazing sun for two hours for an attack, which eventually came from a totally unexpected quarter. The police precautions had been directed toward an assault from the direction of Westminster, where the suffragettes had advertised that they would form a parade. Instead a small body, known because of their militant record as "gun women" of the Women's Social and Political Union, burst from a private residence on Hyde Park corner and forced their way through the archway at the top of Constitution hill before the squad of police on duty there could resist them. Two ambulance corps found plenty to do with cases of fainting among the spectators. At no time were more than a couple of hundred women engaged in the battle, while opposed to them was a force of 1500 police. Several women were injured in the struggle and the ground was strewn with a collection of remnants of garments which had been torn off the women in the hand-to-hand fighting. The police also suffered some casualties during the onslaught. The total arrests numbered fifty-seven, including three men. A dozen suffragettes in the smallpox station at Wellington Arch smashed every window in the place and were removed to bigger stations where there were more police to guard them. Mrs. Pankhurst was taken to Holloway jail for breaking the terms of the license under which she was last released.

Later, King George and Queen Mary were compelled to listen to the harangue of a militant suffragette while they were attending a matinee at His Majesty's theater. A woman arose in the stalls and began to address the king.

"You Russian Czar!" she shrieked. The attendants quickly rushed in and tried to get her out, but found she was chained to the seat. They had to file through a link before she could be removed.

While this was in progress half a dozen women in different parts of the theater started shouting at His Majesty. One of them jumped on the stage and commenced a speech. When she had been thrown out others began.

The "wild women" of the militant suffragette organization continued their terrorizing tactics by making two attacks on national art treasures.

The turmoil of the battle in the vicinity of Buckingham palace had barely subsided when a woman armed with a loaded cane ruined five masterpieces in the National Gallery.

Almost simultaneously another woman wrecked a picture hanging in the Royal Academy of Art. Both women were arrested.

A little later the magistrate before whom were brought the 57 women arrested in connection with the disturbances was compelled to suspend the proceedings because the accused created such a din that nothing could be heard.

The scenes surpassed in wildness all previous efforts of the militant party. A male suffragist, who somehow had found a perch among the rafters, blew ear-piercing variations of the "Marseillaise" on a cornet and then sounded the "charge." This was a signal for volleys of bags of flour and other missiles to be thrown at the magistrate, Sir John Dickinson.

Three policemen were required to prevent one prisoner from throwing her self over the rail of the enclosure. Another woman removed her shoe and hurled it at the head of the magistrate, who caught it deftly with his extended hand.

ONE DEAD, TWO WOUNDED
IN BATTLE WITH ROBBERS

San Francisco.—In an attempt to rob the Horseshoe gambling house, conducted by "Beefsteak Bill" five feet south of the county line in San Mateo county, one man was killed and two others severely wounded. A general fusillade followed the order for "hands up!" Two masked bandits entered the place shortly before midnight. One of them, Timothy Donovan, received two bullets from the pistol of the proprietor and was captured. The other robber escaped. The man killed was a patron of the place named David Williams. Eugene Galatoire, another patron, is at the French hospital in a serious condition.

REGIONAL BANKS WILL END SUB-TREASURIES

All Duties Will Be Assumed by Federal Financial Centers

Washington.—As soon as the new banking and currency system is well established the sub-treasury at San Francisco will be abolished and the San Francisco reserve bank will perform the duties of the present institution. There is in the new currency act no specific provision affecting the future of the handful of sub-treasuries scattered about the country, but the treasury officials realize that the functions of these offices will be assumed by the reserve banks and that no reason will exist for maintaining branches of the Treasury Department. Under the present fiscal system the sub-treasuries have only perfunctory duties. They receive all excess revenues from the customs, internal revenue and postal offices. They exchange new money for old. They redeem gold and silver notes, as well as coupons, and in other ways act as the fiscal agent in their respective territories for the Treasury Department.

ARRIVES HOME IN TIME FOR HIS OWN FUNERAL

Redding.—William Johns, a shoemaker, returned from a visit to Wilbur Springs, picked up a local newspaper read an account of his death and discovered that his funeral had been set for the day following. On the street his fellow townsmen turned away with blanched faces. He finally found an old friend who told him that the body of a drowned man had been unmistakably identified as his own, and that the body had been taken to his home and prepared by an undertaker for burial.

STATE PROTECTS WORKERS SUMMONED AS WITNESSES

Seattle.—E. W. Olson, State labor commissioner, came here from Olympia to investigate the discharge from employment of Miss Johana Hiltz, a laundry worker who served as a member of the women's minimum wage conference last week, and who upon her return found she had lost her place. Olson said the State law undoubtedly protected employees responding to summonses served by the State Industrial Welfare Commission and that he would insist that all employees participating in minimum wage conferences be treated fairly.

Messenger Couldn't Fly

Berlin.—A telegram sent to Herr Spatman, aviator at Prague, was returned to the sender by the postal authorities with the up-to-date mark "Addressee flown away."

China Boy Convicted of Killing

Vancouver.—Jack Kong, the Chinese servant, aged 16, accused of slaying Mrs. Charles Millard, wife of a Canadian Pacific railway employee, was found guilty of manslaughter. Sentence was reserved.

VICTIMS TELL PRESIDENT OF COLORADO CRIMES

Judge Ben Lindsay is Snubbed by Young Rockefeller

Washington.—President Wilson granted an audience to Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver and a delegation of women and children from the strike districts in Colorado. Judge Lindsey explained to the President that Colorado really has a civil war, in which it is necessary that the Federal Government should take a firm hand and force mediation. The President listened to Judge Lindsey and his associates with much interest, and informed them that he did not contemplate the immediate removal of Federal troops. It was Judge Lindsey's intention to hold a similar conference with J. D. Rockefeller Jr. in New York. Rockefeller Jr. declined to see him. "Rockefeller's attitude translated in plain English is 'Let them kill as many strikers as they like; I am not my brother's keeper,'" said Judge Lindsey. "I appealed to young Rockefeller because I thought he was sensible enough to read the signs of the times."

IRISH HOME RULE BILL PASSED FOR LAST TIME

London.—The Irish Home Rule bill passed its third reading in the House of Commons last Monday by a majority of 78.

Upon the rejection of the bill by the lords, which is taken for granted, it will automatically become a law with the King's signature, and within the next 12 months the new Irish Parliament will be sitting at Dublin.

EXTREME PENALTY BRINGS CONVICTED WOMAN FRIENDS

Oakland.—Attorney A. L. Frick has been retained as the associate counsel, together with Burton Wyman, to bring the case of Hazel Lux before the Appellate Court on appeal from the sentence of life inflicted on her by Judge Ogden for the murder of William Garland.

Mrs. Lux has been the recipient of many letters from all over the state and from other states. Visitors have come from many out-of-town cities to visit her, and the case has excited unusual interest.

Wyman declares that funds are being sent by sympathizers ample to meet the carrying on of the case.

Kermit Roosevelt to Marry

Madrid.—Kermit Roosevelt, whose marriage to Miss Belle Wyatt Willard, daughter of the American Ambassador to Spain, is to take place early in June, arrived here in the best of health and spirits.

Detroit to Build Subways

Detroit.—In accordance with a resolution adopted by the Detroit Municipal Street Railway Commission, the city will immediately proceed to construct a system of city owned subway lines.

Vegetable Compound
Saved Her Life
and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had failing, inflammation, and congestion,
female weakness, pains in both sides,
backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous,
weak spells, hot flashes over my body.
I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good,
and I never expected to get out again.
I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicine had not saved
me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells.
All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."

HER LACK OF FAITH

Young Bride Jealous of Own Note Found in Husband's Pocket.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

(Copyright, 1914, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
Young Mrs. Dewey took her husband's brown coat and sat down in the sunny window to sew on a missing button.

Antoinette Dewey had been married only three months and she still believed Jim to be without a fault—unless it might be the minor one of twisting his coat buttons when he was talking busily.

"This is the third time I've sewed on this blessed button," smiled Antoinette as she snipped off the thread.
At that moment her hand brushed the pocket of the coat and something crackled.

"I do wonder if he has forgotten to mail my letter to Edith! I forgot to ask him and he is so absent minded. It's funny she hasn't answered it."

Antoinette's slim fingers had gone down into the inner breast pocket of the brown coat. They brought up a half a dozen letters, a railroad timetable and a leather card case.

She picked out the letter to Edith Delano and actually gave the brown coat a pinch as she tossed it on a chair. "I must telephone to her at once. What will she think of me?"

Antoinette sat down before the telephone and pulled the instrument toward her. While she waited for a response to her call, she stacked the other letters on the desk.

Just as Mrs. Delano's voice came thrilling over the wire, Antoinette, her eyes idly scanning the package of letters she had taken from her husband's coat, noticed that the top one was without an envelope. It was hastily written in pencil on a tiny sheet of paper and the signature was folded underneath. The writing was rubbed and blurred as if the note had
been carried around in Jim's pocket.

"The idea!" breathed Antoinette
quickly.

Then she had to talk to her friend
and when apologies had been proffered
and accepted and some girlish
gossip exchanged, Antoinette rang off
and slowly picked up the little note.

For a long time she sat there with it in her hand. She shrank from opening the sheet and reading the words—but she was Jim's wife and she ought to know! For it was a woman's writing—and that fact explained how Antoinette Dewey put honor aside and deliberately read the note.

It was tantalizingly short—for one who wanted to know!
"Dearest: The days are 60 hours
long while you are away. Come back soon to Your Own!"

"The hor—hor—horrid—creature!"
sobbed Antoinette, after awhile. "The bold thing—to write like that to a married man! I never would have believed it of Jim—oh, Jim, Jim—Jim!"

Antoinette flung herself down on the couch and allowed her bitter tears to soak into the brown coat. After awhile she arose and removed the traces of tears. She stared at the reflection of her wan, white face and laid down the hand-mirror with a gasp of dismay. A few minutes later she put on her hat and a thick veil. She went to the corner drug store and when she returned she set forth on her dressing table a number of little jars and bottles.

Antoinette had never used rouge
in her life but now she hid the traces of grief, she restored her complexion to its usual brilliancy and the highly satisfactory result lent an equally artificial expression of happiness to her face. She put on a becoming frock of pale blue linen and piled her hair on top of her head.

When Jim Dewey reached home
that night he found a pretty little wife waiting for him.

After his first quick kiss Jim drew
back and stared hard at Antoinette;
his look coldly impersonal and his manner stiff.

"What has happened?" he asked
quickly.

"He has a guilty conscience!"
thought Antoinette as she sat down hastily for fear her trembling knees would give way.

"What did you expect to happen?"
she retorted lightly.

Jim looked at her closely and his mouth grew sulky. "Nothing," he said curtly; and with that word the conversation languished.

It was a hideous meal to both of them. Antoinette scarcely touched her food and Jim refused dessert—it was his favorite pudding, too. Even Nora noticed that something was wrong and tried to patch up the quarrel in her own kind-hearted way, for,
when the meal was over and she was washing dishes in the kitchen they could hear her strong soprano singing lustily: "Tis Only Love Can Soothe a Broken Heart."

Jim settled down to read the evening paper and Antoinette picked up some sewing, but her fingers trembled and her eyes filled with tears. She was angry at herself for this display of emotion.

All the women she had read about in fiction or seen on the stage were mavens of calmness when confronted with the proofs of a faithless husband.
Tall and pale and cold and perfect mistress of herself even while she laid bare the secrets of Jim's heart—thus would Antoinette have appeared if she had had her way.

her at the recollection that Jim was not all hers—never had been!— Jim turned quickly—one might have suggested that he had been listening for some sound from the little form
in the willow chair.

"What is the matter, Antoinette?"
he asked quietly.

Antoinette lifted her dark eyes to his and placed on the table between them the blurred little note she had found in his pocket.

"This is the matter," she said unevenly. "I found it in your pocket
when I was mending your brown coat
—don't look so disgusted. I really read it—I'm glad I did! For it has opened my eyes to your deception!"

"Deception?" echoed Jim, jumping
up and towering over his small wife.
"What harm is there—"

"Harm?" interrupted Antoinette angrily. "Harm—what harm would there be if you discovered I was carrying a love letter from some other man next to my heart?"

"From some other man? What would I do? Why, why, I suppose I'd punch his head," he said dazedly. "But what has that got to with it? For the love of Mike, Chickie, tell me how you could raise a rumper over that harmless little note, eh? Notice, I'm not saying anything about your rummaging through my pockets!"

"Harmless little note, indeed!"
flared back Antoinette. "She called you her 'dearest'—she said the days were 'sixty hours long'—and she signed herself 'Your Own.' Tell me, James Dewey, who is this woman?"

Jim's lips trembled in a smile, suffused sternly, and his eyes were quite hard when he asked: "Don't you really know who wrote that note, Antoinette?"

"How should I know?" she retorted.
"I am sure it cannot be one of my friends—any way, it is such a common looking, grubby note; if I'm going to have a rival—I—"

She broke
down and sobbed brokenly.

A great tenderness came into Jim's eyes. He had never known Antoinette to be jealous before and he was touched by her grief.

He held the note before her eyes.
Antoinette dabbed her handkerchief
folded underneath. The writing was rubbed and blurred as if the note had
been carried around in Jim's pocket.

"The idea!" breathed Antoinette
quickly.

Then she had to talk to her friend
and when apologies had been proffered

On the contrary she was small and piquant looking—Jim called her a "black-eyed chickadee" most of the time. Now, she wondered what he called that other woman—the one who confidently signed herself "Your Own!"

Jim was stirring restlessly in his chair. Antoinette could see the back of his head with its heavy crop of brown hair. She could close her eyes and see his regular features, hazel eyes, straight black brows and finely chiseled lips. A little sob broke from

EXCELLENT AS A SHARPENER

Guide Piece, Invented by a New Jersey Man, Insures Proper Angle of Blade to Rod.

The sharpening of knives, scissors
and the like is not so simple as it seems. Many a man uses a safety razor merely because he does not know how to strop an old-fashioned razor.

For the secret of sharpening a steel blade is in the angle at which you apply the tool to the sharpening device, whatever it may be. To insure Scissors Sharpener.

the right angle, a New Jersey man has patented a scissors sharpener that has a guidepiece attached. This guide-piece is of greater width than the sharpening rod and has a curved upper edge. It is adjustably secured to the rod and diagonally across the face of the latter, preferably near the upper end. A scissors drawn across the rod with this guide in place must be drawn
at the correct angle, and there is no danger of breaking down a fine edge.

"Chickie, what do you want me to do?" he asked Jim again, "do you really mean to say that you don't recognize that note?"

"I only read it once."
"Well, read it again, word for word,
read the address at the top. It is almost obliterated now—but read it.
The envelope is locked up in my desk."

Antoinette held the ragged note close to the lamp and re-read the pencilled words. A puzzled look came into her face.

"I can't remember anything about it—was she some one I knew?" she asked at last.

"Dear, you wrote it yourself!" cried
Jim excitedly. "Do you remember that time when you were stopping at Sea Sands with your mother? We had just become engaged and we quarreled over a necktie I was wearing?
I went back to town and you wrote
me this darling note and I've kept it ever since!"

And then, Antoinette vaguely remembered the lastly scribbled note.
The whir of her short, happy engagement to Jim!

There was only one thing to do and Antoinette did it. She laid her head on Jim's broad shoulder and begged forgiveness for her lack of faith!

To Him Who Waits.
Warwick—There's Wilkins. Have you read his latest novel? He has the heroine, an heiress, turn down the hero
and marry the villain.

Wickwire—it seems as if that would be rather unsatisfactory.

Warwick—Yes; but that's where Wilkins shows his talent. The hero then becomes the heroine's lawyer, and the fortune comes to him, after all.

—Judge.

Unfortunate Illustration.
Figs—Do you believe in metempe-choesis?

Fogg—Come again, please!
Figs—It's like this. According to that doctrine, my soul after I get through with it may inhabit the body of a jackass.

Fogg—Well, I don't know any place
where it would feel more at home.

Easier Than He Thought.
"G-good evening," said the young man who had come to speak to the young girl's father.

"Good evening," said the father.
"You look a little nervous. How do you feel?"

"Flattered," said the young man.
"I was afraid I looked scared to death."—Penn State Froth.

A Future in Art.
"You say you are educating your boy
for a theatrical career?"

"Yes."
"An actor or producer?"

"No. I want him to become prosperous as well as prominent. I am going to make a ticket speculator of him."

A Gentle Optimist.
"Who is your favorite poet?"

"I don't know his name. He's the weather expert who writes the fair
and warmer predictions."

SELF-CLEANER FOR BUCKETS

The Scientific American describes a self-cleaning drag scraper bucket, invented by W. H. Morse of New Orleans, as follows:

ON THE FUNNY SIDE

OAK WAS VERY OLDEST TREE

Little Girl Comes Near Putting One
Over on Secretary of Agriculture
on Question of Age.

No one, looking at the president's cabinet on mass, would give it credit for uttering the words of wit accredited to it.

Even the secretary of agriculture
has a slender giggle attributed to him.
A little girl, believing that the secretary of agriculture must be versed
in the lore of the forests, asked him
one day, indicating a huge tree:

"Did somebody tell me right when he said that that tree was the very oldest one around here?"

"Yes, my dear; that is quite true."
"But how can it be?" questioned the child. "That isn't an oak, and they said to tell me that the oaks were the very oldest trees anywhere."

The secretary saw himself tottering on the precipice of self-betrayal, so he ended further questioning by saying:
"Yes, that's so, too. The oaks really used to be the oldest. But, you see, that was before the elders were planted."—Neal's Monthly.

Conversational Meteorology.
Reggie—So, by way of breaking the ice, I remarked that the weather was very cold.

Henry—Well, and what did she reply?

Reggie—She said: "The recurring phenomena of heat and cold are so frequent and so familiar as to be matters
too negligible to engage my interest,
Mr. Risky."

Henry—That all?—Judge.

Also Called Nemesis.
"Pa, what is fate?"
"Fate, my boy, is that mysterious something which leads you to pick out of 400 people in the ballroom the one man who has a personal interest in the homely woman you are making fun comments about."—Detroit Free

Another Expensive Remedy.
Wife (with newspaper)—Here's something interesting. Physicians have found that the skin from the inside of an egg possesses curative properties.

Hub—Just like 'em! They're always experimenting with radium and those expensive things.—Boston Transcript.

Technical.
"That doctor don't seem to talk anything but automobile language since he got his car."

"No, now when one of his patients has appendicitis he tells him that he is in danger of having a puncture of his inner tube."

A Failure.
First Doctor—Was your operation
successful?

Second Ditto—It was the worst kind of a failure.

First Doctor—In what way?
Second Ditto—I never could collect
the bill.

Discouraging.
"I made a point of talking about the American eagle and the dove of peace," remarked Senator Sorghum.

"Did the audience approve?"
"I'm afraid not. The only remark
I heard was that I was a better ornithologist than I was a statesman."

HOW MEAN.
Mr. Growl—I hope when we're married you won't be towing that dog about.

Miss Howl—Of course not—I'll have you then.

When Usmon Snores.
"Usmon makes a great racket when he snores, doesn't he?"
"I don't know; I never heard him."
"But you can hear him now, can't you?"

"Great guns, is that a snore? I thought he was filing a saw!"

A Small Tragedy.
"No, Gladys," said Mrs. Cumrox;
"you cannot go to the party tonight."

"Why not?"
"Because we cannot be out of fashion. There is only one set of rainbow hair in the house and I am going to wear that myself."

Details.
"Poor Blings has been up against it again."
"Against what?"
"The fresh painted door in his new suit."

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY.

The Rev. Edmund Heslop of Wigton, Pa., suffered from Dropsy for a year. His limbs and feet were swollen and puffed. He had heart fluttering, was dizzy and exhausted at the least exertion. Hands and feet were cold and he had such a dragging sensation across the loins that it was difficult to move.

After using five
boxes of Dodds
Kidney Pills the swelling disappeared and he felt himself again. He says he has been benefited and blessed by the use of Dodds Kidney Pills. Several months later he wrote: I have not changed my faith
in your remedy since the above statement was authorized. Correspond with Rev. E. Heslop about this wonderful remedy.

Boost for Richmond.

What is a muzzle? Ask Huerta.

The people have the votes. There will be no "letting Bill do it" at the coming elections.

It may be "California Railway Co.," which is pretty fair; but "Key Route" is good enough.

A bond ridden city always has numerous "For Rent" and "For Sale" signs in the windows. Richmond has no signs of this kind.

What's your you do, don't knock—we are all endeavoring to found here in front of the Golden Gate the greatest commercial mart on the Pacific Coast.

Remember you have a chance at the November election to take a "fall" out of that un-American poll-tax law, long since obsolete in all civilized countries.

Richmond's city council work two nights a week and receive no remuneration therefor. Some of the little "bush league" interior towns pay their town trustees five dollars per meeting and extra pay for overtime.

Hecker, convicted twice for the murder of Rosenthal, has entered the death house the second time. No criminal has ever returned from this place or escaped execution, after the second visit to the house of the electric chair.

C. I. Fox of Antioch, candidate for county supt. of schools, and a popular one, is president of the Antioch Republican Club of that city. The club started with 65 members, and is supporting Hon. C. M. Belshaw.

The booklet on "School Architecture" issued by the state supt. of public instruction, is brimful of good suggestions and illustrated with designs of modern school buildings. Just the thing for some of the "old style" school boards to "wise up" on.

Japanese employees of concessionaries at the Panama-Pacific exposition in San Francisco must put up a bond of $500 to insure their departure from the United States within thirty days after termination of employment. If absent from the exposition more than a week, they must report or be deported.

Proofreader to comp: "What do you abbreviate the beautiful word 'California' for? 'Calif.' is rotten, worse than 'Frisco.'" Comp: "I do it for convenience and economy. This is an age of short cuts, skimpy skirts and general retrenchment. Why, the dyes are even trying to trim our drinks."

A strictly labor paper says: "Now is the time for the liquor interests to unionize their plants, pay wages and cut out the company stores and 'must' boarding-houses a la Winehaven. The time has arrived when 100,000 union men's votes are worth while, especially in a statewide campaign on the wet and dry question."

WOULD "GET" THE LEGISLATURE

The Stockton Record says that all new laws are not letter perfect, but believes that the progressive laws of California are correct in purpose and principle. The opponents of the present laws are reactionaries who by "foxyness" and devious designed amendments are seeking to nullify and make inoperative the laws made by the present legislature. Governor Johnson in his state-wide canvass is giving out some valuable information and timely hints regarding the Otis-Spreckels de Young propaganda and the "porch climbing" and "pussy-footing" that is now going on in the reactionary camp to "get Johnson." This bunk game won't work. They know that Johnson is re-elected. They want to "get" the legislature. But the people can only be fooled part of the time—not this time.

THE COMING LEGISLATURE.

The Sacramento Bee watchfully and wisely says: "The time for giving attention to the important matter of selecting members of the coming legislature is very significant RIGHT NOW. The opponents of Governor Johnson and his progressive policies despair of defeating the governor, but if they can elect enough members of the legislature to tie his hands they will have won half the fight for reaction. Too much emphasis cannot be laid on the people looking to the personal records and political associations of those who offer themselves as candidates for the senate and assembly. Toward the close of the campaign the gubernatorial fight is liable to overshadow local contests. It is advisable, therefore, for the progressive people in every community to get together early and make their plans for harmonious action on candidates for the legislature."

COUNTRY EDITORS:

Arthur Brisbane, the noted editor, the highest salaried of the profession, has this to say about the country editor: "The conditions under which the junior in the court house, cleaning the halls and looking after the cuspidors, is better paid than the editor of a local newspaper, are not going to last forever. Intelligent use of the parcel post, more intelligent activity on the part of country merchants, better appreciation of their own value by the country editors and more knowledge of the country newspapers as advertising mediums on the part of great merchants, will make conditions what they ought to be."

"You must remember first that the editor of a country newspaper deals with the best buying class in the world. A big newspaper is taken by dwellers in flats, who get their heat through a steam pipe, their light through an electric wire and their supplies at a delicatessen store. The big city newspaper with hundreds of thousands of circulation does not begin to compare in value per thousand circulation with the country newspaper. And yet there are big city newspapers that yield a profit greatly exceeding 20 per subscriber per year."

"The reader of the country newspaper BUYS EVERYTHING. He is the best customer that the American manufacturer can possibly have. And the country editor is the sales man who alone can reach him."

"These new conditions will give to the editor of the country newspaper a fair reward for his work as the national policeman and local protector of popular government."

A good oil stove will do away with the swelter and discomfort of a blazing hot range. Get an oil stove this summer and do your kitchen work in comfort. The does all that any wood or coal stove will do. It bakes, broils, roasts and toasts perfectly. The long chimneys concentrate the heat just under the utensils. It is not wasted or thrown out into the room. The New Perfection doesn't smoke or smell; doesn't taint the food. It burns kerosene, the clean, cheap fuel. Think of the comfort—no coal or wood to lug; no ashes to dirty the kitchen. Ask your dealer for the New Perfection.

New Perfection OIL COOK STOVE
